DETAILED ACTION

Claim Objections

1. Claims 1 and 7 are objected to because of the following informalities: The recitation “adjustable be” appears to be in error. Observing the functionality of the claim the applicant appears to have intended to use adjustably. Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:
A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 1 and 6 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Ito et al.

Regarding claims 1 Ito teaches a valve stem 11 for permitting flow of air into the tire (inherent); an electronic element 3 for transmitting a data representing the condition of the tire; a casing 10 for accommodating the electronic element 3; and a coupler 20 for coupling the valve stem to the casing such that an angle of the casing relative to the valve stem is adjustable be controlled [0030][0061][0052].

Regarding claims 6 Ito et al teaches a valve nut 17 threaded to the valve stem 11 to attach stem to a wheel 5, wherein the angle of the casing fastening the valve nut the valve is fixed by fastening the valve nut [0029].

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

Claims 2-5,7 and 8-10 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Ito et al.

Regarding claims 2-5,7 and 8 Ito teaches at least one projection 27 but does not teach grooves formed in a proximal portion of the valve stem wherein the coupler has a pair of arcuate and movable projections fit into the grooves. However since it appears that Ito provides the function as claimed with respect to the casing, lacking any criticality it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the casing and coupler taught by Ito with whatever additional projections, grooves and/or whatever hardware needed to provide an adjustable coupler as taught by Ito for the purpose of providing an apparatus for tire monitoring systems that would provide more maneuverability and versatility.

Regarding claim 9 Ito et al teaches a valve nut 17 threaded to the valve stem 11 to attach stem to a wheel 5, wherein the angle of the casing fastening the valve nut the valve is fixed by fastening the valve nut [0029].

Regarding claim 10 Ito teaches the valve nut is loosened, the casing and the coupler is movable relative to the valve stem [0029].
